

Task 1 High-Scoring Sample Response

I personally think it's better to work part-time while attending university.

One reason is that a part-time job helps students gain real-world experience while still in school. For example, I worked in a local café during my second year, and it taught me how to manage my time, deal with pressure, and communicate professionally with customers and coworkers. Those are useful skills I still apply today.

Another reason is that earning money helps students become more financially responsible and independent. For instance, I used my income to cover daily expenses like food and transportation, which made me feel more in control of my life and also reduced the burden on my parents.

For these reasons, I believe working part-time during university is a smart and rewarding choice for students.
